Course Description: In this course, we will use economic theory and analysis to aid our understanding of conditions in sub-Saharan Africa. We examine why developing countries in Africa face extreme poverty, high child mortality, low levels of education, poor health, and high levels of child labor and which policies, if any, might be effective in alleviating these problems. Emphasis will be placed on analyzing current economic issues and policies in their historical context. The course is organized around a series of broad questions, which will be explored with reference to particular societies. We will examine the historical roots of the current structure of African economies, the economic reform process, agricultural and industrial development, patterns of poverty and income distribution, health and education and international economic relations.

Course Prerequisites: Econ 102 and Econ 103. Econ 302 strongly recommended.

Course Requirements and Evaluation:
Grades will be based on the following:
- Map quiz on African geography (5%)
- 2 midterm exams (25% each)
- Final exam (45%)
- Each student is expected to be able to discuss the required readings assigned for each class.

Graduate students taking Econ 450 for 4 credits: To earn the 4th credit, you will need to complete an additional project in addition to all of the course requirements that the undergrads will complete (map quiz, 2 midterms, final exam). This project will be a 15-20 page original research paper focused on a topic about economic development in Africa. The paper must use 1 inch margins, 12 point Times New Roman font, and must have a references section listing all of the sources you have used in the paper. By October 1, you must email me a 1 paragraph project proposal detailing the research question you will be working on. I will respond to these emails approving the research topic. Only research topics approved by me are acceptable.

Final Exam Conflict Policy:
From the University’s final exam policy:

- Any student having more than two consecutive final examinations is entitled to rescheduling as follows if he or she takes the following action no later than the last day of classes:
  - The student must investigate whether a conflict examination is being held at another time for any of the examinations involved.
  - If a conflict examination has been scheduled for any of the courses, the student must take one or more of these conflict examinations. If conflict examinations are offered for more than one course, the student must take the conflict for the course that has the largest number of students.
If no conflict examinations have been scheduled, the student must contact the instructor of the course having the largest number of students. The contact must be made no later than the last day of classes, and that instructor must provide a makeup examination.

If no conflict examinations have been scheduled, the student must contact the instructor of the course having the largest number of students. The contact must be made no later than the last day of classes, and that instructor must provide a makeup examination.

Normally in a semester several combined-sections, conflict, and noncombined examinations are given at the same time. As a guide to resolving conflicts, an order of priority has been established within each examination period, and a student should resolve a conflict using the published examination schedules and the following priority guidelines.

- National and state professional examinations (e.g. CPA, actuarial science, Architecture Registration Examination) take priority over campus final examinations. An instructor must offer a conflict examination to a student scheduled to take a national or state professional examination and a campus final examination at the same time.
- A noncombined course examination has precedence over any combined-sections or conflict examination.
- A department offering a combined-sections final examination must provide a conflict examination if required to accommodate student conflicts.
